PETER GRAHAM KILLED HIM

HIS BOY BROTHERS TELL HOW HE SHOT PEDDLER STAHLMAN.

Peter, According to Their Story, Found the Peddler in the House Attic and Shot Him as a Thief-Dragged the Body Into the Wagon and Drove Away with It.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 3.-Peter Graham. the 15-year-old boy whom the police have under arrest for the killing of Joseph Stahlman, the peddler, on last Wednesday, killed the man in the Graham house and then placed the body in the wagon and covered it up with blankets, according to the story told by his is year-old brother. Peter led the horse to Seely's lane and concealed it in the thick shrubbery. After a short time he gave alarm. His story was so clear and told with such apparent truth that it deceived the detectives for some time, but later statements made by the boy gave rise to suspicion that he knew something about the affair and he was arrested. It now appears that all the members of the Graham family knew of the illing, even the three young brothers of Peter, who are aged 5.7 and 9 years. It is under-good that Peter has told the police all about the killing. They refuse to give anything out,

From one of the brothers of Peter the story of the killing was secured to-day by a reporter. Near the scene of the murder three boys, who ved to be Peter Graham's brothers, were found playing beside the road. The oldest of the three boys is Sam, aged 9. The youngest, Jim. is only 5.

"Have you seen your brother Peter since he was arrested?" was asked. "He and Arnold were up here yesterday afternoon They went all over the house together. What d're think they will give him.

Gosh, I guess they will keep him in till he is 21. That will make it six years, won't it?" added Frank. "Do you boys know why Peter shot the Jew peddler?" asked the reporter.

two years?" asked Sam.

The boys replied that they knew, and the two older lads were willing to tell. They took the reporter to the house and showed him where the shooting took place, how Peter dodged around the chimney to escape the blow simed at him by Stahiman and the shooting. At the time of the shooting Sam and Frank were at school, the father at work and the mother away peddling milk. Peter and Jim were fishing together in the stream back of the house. Peter heard one of the three dogs in the house bark, and, going back first, saw the borse and wagon of the peddler standing in the home. Feter heard one of the three ages in the house bark, and, going back first, saw the horse and wagon of the peddler standing in the road in front of the house.

Peter went into the kitchen and heard some one walking in the attle overhead. There is a range in the kitchen and the stovepipe goes into a large brick chimney. The door that leads to the attle is back of the range. Opening this door. Peter went upstairs and saw Stahiman in the attle. His arms were full of tools and ironware. Peter wanted to know what he was doing there, and called him a thief. More than that, Peter went up to the man and took hold of him. At this Stahiman dropped the goods he was carrying, selzed an iron bar and made for Peter. Peter doiged behind the chimney and jumped down the stairway and into the kitchen. Then he ran for his mother's revolver, and just as the peddler started to come downstairs with the iron bar in his hand. Peter ran to the door and shot him. During the shooting the boy was so excited he did not stop pulling the trigger of the weapon till the chambers were emptied.

trigger of the weapon till the chambers were emptied.

The man fell headforemost downstairs. Peter took hold of him and dragged him to the doorway of the kitchen. The boy then went to the roadway, got the peddier's team and backed the wagon against the doorway. Then he got several boards and made impromptu skids by placing one end of the boards against the sill of the doorway and the other on the tailboard of the wagon. A stout rope was tiel around the body, which was dragged into the wagon on the skids. After Peter got the body into the wagon he covered it with coats and blankets to conceal it while on his way to the deserted Seely lane.

"Who helped Peter to drag the body on the wagon?" was next asked.
"Sure they wan't nobody here, only Petey himself. He dragged the body in the wagon by himself."

"Jim, where were you when all this was gother of the wagon was a the content of the wagon." asked the reporter turning to the

by himself."

"Jim, where were you when all this was going on?" asked the reporter, turning to the youngest boy. Jim was not allowed to answer.
Frank replied for him:

"He was down at the river fishing all the time."
How is it that you boys know all this?" was next asked.

"Oh, we all know the story now," replied Oh, we all know the story how, replied Sam.

There are no blood stains to be seen in the garret or near the door where the boy said Peter dragged the body of the dead man when he put it into the wagon. Five shots were fired from the revolver and four entered the body of the peddler, but no trace of the fifth builet can be found in the house.

PROBABLY CAPT. CRAPO'S BODY.

Bemains Thought to Be Those of the Adventurous Sallor Found on a Beach. PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 3.-This morning a body was found on Charlestown beach, on the southern coast of the State, by Capt, Charles Church, and there is every reason to believe that the remains are those of adventurous Capt. Thomas Crapo, who on April 26 left this city in a nine-foot dory, the Volunteer, for a trip to Cuba. He was last seen by Capt. Church and the men at the life-saving station at Point Judith, which he passed on May 3. The next morning Capt. Crapo's boat was found entaneled in the fishing nets on Ouonochontaug beach, about an eighth of a mile from shore The boat contained a number of the personal effects of the Captain. effects of the Captain.

The body is attired in clothes similar to those worn by Capt. Crapo when he started on his journey. The coat was missing, but this might be expected, as it is not to be supposed that the Captain made no effort to save his life by swimming, to do which he would relieve himself of as much of his clothing as possible. The hands and face were almost devoid of fiesh, the body baying been the prey of the fishes. The Captain's relatives have been notified, and will examine the body to establish the identity. identity.

Capt. Crapo lived in New Bedford and was a fearless salior. In 1877 he and his wife crossed the ocean in a twenty-foot dory, and he had taken many long and dangerous trips in boats which would hardly be considered safe in a mill nead.

SWINDLERS IN SOUTH JERSEY. They Fall Back on the Old Lightning Rod

Scheme, but Are Successful. Lightning rod swindlers are fleecing the farmers of Gloucester county, N.J. They have been working around Glassboro and Clayton. One of the men, acting as an advance agent, represents that his firm authorizes him to place rods on one set of farm buildings in each township as an advertisement, charging the township as an advertisement, charging the farmer only for the actual cost of the labor, which would amount to less than $5, but he must have a contract signed to that effect, else when his men come to do the work they will charge the regular price.

The farmer, happy in being the only man in the township to get something for nothing, cheerfully signs, only to find next day, when the partner arrives with the contract and rods, that he has agreed to pay to cents per foot for the rod and extra for each joint, stay and tip.

WILL DECLARED TO BE A FORGERY.

Surrogate Silkman's Decision as to the Estate of a Mount Vernon Priest. WHITE PLAISS, June 3. Surrogate Silkman decided to-day that the alleged will of Father Albinger of Mount Vernon is a forgery. The Rev. Joseph Albinger, pastor of the Roman Catholic Church at Mount Vernon, died about a year and a half ago in Germany. At the time it was supposed that he was a poor man, but this idea was dispelled by the finding of $30,-000 in gold coin in a safe deposit vault in New York and doeds for two farms in the West and several dwellings in New Jersey, making the value of the estate about $75,000. In January last Nicholas Lauer of Greece, Monroe county, appeared with a paper pur-porting to be the will of Father Albinger. It

Monroe county, appeared with a paper purporting to be the will of Father Albinger. It reads as follows:

1. Joseph Albinger, of the city of Mount Vernon, in the county of Westchester and State of New York, being in sound mind and memory, declare this my last will and testament and do hereby give and bequeath unto Mr. Nicholas Lauer, of Greece, Monroe county, New York, one-half of all my po-sessions in America of cash and real estate. I hereby revoke all former wills made by me and hereunito subscribe my name on the 18th day of June, A. D. 1897. Also I appoint Mr. Nicholas Lauer my executor. Jos. Alennoer.

Father Albinger's sisters, living in Germany, gave notice of contest. Many hearings were had, and most of the experts who testified said the will was a forgery.

Surrogate Bilkmun's opinion in the case is, in part, as follows:

"The paper propounded is dated the 18th day of June, 1887. The will is written upon one side of a portion of a full-sized letter sheet, the top evidently having been cut off with a knife or a sharp instrument. With the exception of the alleged signatures of the willnesses and their addresses, it is conceledly written by Nicholas Lauer, the proponent and only beneficiary. The disposing part of the will is in three lines and a half. After the date of the instrument, which is at the beginning as well as the end, these words appear: 'Also do I appoint Mr. Nicholas Lauer, in executor,' which were written in after the will was signed. The signature is a forgery, while on the will there is evidence of crasures having been made while the signatures of the winesses had evidently been made in lead penoli and then followed over in ink.'

The contest will now be carried to the Court of Appeals by Lauer.

Margaret Tischler, Father Albinger's house-keper, will present a claim for $30,000 for thirty years' service.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY NOT NEW W. J. Clark Says Messages Were Sept With-

At the annual meeting of the New York Electrical Society last night, in the Concert Hall of Madison Square Garden, W. J. Clark lectured on "The Possibilities of Wireless Telegraphy and Telephony," and conducted a number of experiments.

Mr. Clark has been studying the system developed by Prof. Marconi, and he was enthusiastic over its possibilities. After describing the instruments used by Prof. Marconi by the aid of charts he gave an exhibition of wireless telegraphy. The instruments were placed about thirty feet apart, and the bell in the re-ceiver answered to the manipulation of the about thirty feet apart, and the bell in the receiver answered to the manipulation of the transmitter so perfectly that Mr. Clark was able to spell out words.

"Frof. Marconi's system is not new," he said.

"The transmission of electricity without wires was known as far back as 174%, in that year Dr. Watson transmitted signals across the Thames. In 1748 Benjamin Franklin stood on one side of the Schuylkill River and by means of electricity ignited a fire for a piente party on the other side, using the water for a conductor. In 1838 Prof. Henry made discoveries in this line and transmitted a message across the Potomac. In 1831 Prof. Dolbear sent messages without wires for the distance of a half mile. Later on Prof. Hertz, while experimenting on an entirely different line, discovered the fundamental principle of Marconi's work. Although Marconi has discovered nothing now he deserves credit for the results he has achieved.

"Thomas Edison should not be forgotten in this respect. In 1870 he devised a method of telegraphing from railroad trains, and it was put into practical operation. It was not abandoned because it was a failure, but because it was a failure, but because it was found to be too expensive to keep operators on the trains for the small patronage the system received."

STABBED IN A ROW OFER A WOMAN. Young Man from Orange Boughly Handled in the Park View Hotel.

A man who said he was Robert S. Walker, hatter of Peakskill, is lying dangerously ill at the Roosevelt Hospital as the result of injuries which he received early yesterday morning in the Park View Hotel at Broadway and Sixtieth street. He was stabled three times by a man who resented his conduct in bowing to a woman who came out of the "red room."

Walker said, that while sitting with a musician at the piano he returned a bow from a woman who came out of an adjoining room, and that he was struck from behind. He said he did not know who his assailant was, but the police do not believe him. They think he is he did not know who his assailant was, but the police do not believe him. They think he is trying to hush the matter up. They say that after he was stabbed Walker went to the office of Dr. Charles H. Lewis, at 28 West Sixty-first street, in the hopes of keeping the matter quiet. The physician saw that he was dangerously wounded and sent for an ambulance. Robert Walker is the son of Charles Walker, a member of the hat manufacturing firm of Thomas Walker & Co., at 16 North Park street, Orange, N. J. He has not been living with his parents for several months, and it was understood that he was to go to Porto. Bigo as one of Uncle Sam's suldiers. Young Walker is a graduate of the Peckskill Military Academy, He was a member of the Second Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, in the late war. While in camp with his regiment at Jacksonville he got typhoid fever and was removed to his home. For a time his life was despaired of.

DISPENSARY LAW DECISION.

Individuals May Bring Liquor Into South Carolina for Private Use.

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 3 .- The Judges of the Supreme and Circuit Courts sitting en banc have decided an important point in the Dispensary law, reversing the lower court. In December, 1800, three citizens of Darlington county, travelling by private conveyance, went forty miles across the State line into North Carolina. There they purchased twenty-one gallons of whiskey for private use, put it in gallons of whiskey for private use, put it in jugs and kegs, and returned into this State. When near their homes they were arrested by State Constables, put in jail, and the liquor and teams confiscated. They were convicted, and appealed.

The majority of the court holds that the liquor was not contraband, and construes the word "arrival" in the Wilson act to mean not arrival at the State line but arrival at destination. The right of individuals or their agents to bring liquor into the State in private conveyances for their own use and to have such liquor protected in transit is conceded.

A HUSBAND WELL WATCHED

HOW MRS. JAMES A. STEWART GOT EVIDENCE FOR HER DIVORCE SUIT.

The Cook a Witness and a Nurse Girl the Co-Respondent-Private Detectives Concealed in the House-The Defendant Is a Well-Known Brooklyn Physician.

John McKeon, referee in the suit of Cornelia Hollingsworth Stewart against Dr. James Alexander Stewart for an absolute divorce, presented his report yesterday afternoon to Justice Almet F. Jenks at the special term of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn. It is in favor of the plaintiff, and recommends that the mother retain the custody of Helen Stewart, the 7-year-old daughter of the couple, and that $000 a year allmony and $500 additional for the support and education of the girl be awarded her.

Former Congressman Magner, counsel for the defendant, made a vigorous protest against the confirmation of the referee's findings. which he characterized as "most extraor-Jinary" in view of the evidence submitted and the fact that Dr. Stewart and the co-respondent, who was referred to simply as "Lizzie," both denied the alleged misconduct. Mr. Magner asserted that Mrs. Stewart never contemplated a divorce proceeding until her husband had remonstrated with her about her bicycle and carriage rides with a certain lawyer. She then, as Mr. Magner averred, introduced into the Stewart household in Bedford duced into the Stewart household in Bedford avenue, in the capacity of cook, a woman who had been only a week in the country to not as spy over her husband and "Susie," the sixteen-year-old nurse girl. The stories of the cook, which Mr. Magner contended were unfounded, formed part of the testimony heard by the referee in behalf of the plaintiff.

Mr. Magner said that in addition to the cook Mrs. Stewart had private detectives concealed all over the house from time to time, one even being in the cellar. Holes were bored, he asserted, in several walls, through which the snies were to take observations, and strips of paper were rasted over them. In spite of all this remarkable detective ingenuity, Mr. Magner claimed no proof of wrongdoing was furnished.

A trip which by: Stewart made on an Albany night boat with his daughter and the nurse was also referred to by Mr. Magner. Mrs. Stewart, he said, had sent two detectives along to watch her husband, but all they could testify to was that the nurse and the girl occupied one of the berths in a stateroom and Dr. Stewart, who did not disrobe, the other.

It came out at the hearing that Dr. Stewart had made alleged confessions. His counsel admitted that after their separation he had written to his wife, in the hone of effecting a reconcillation, letters in which he expressed regret for some acts on his part. He now strenuously denied that those acts were such as his wife complained of. He also denied that he had made an explicit confession to a brother of his wife.

The report of the referee and the accompanying testimony and letters were not made public. Justice Jenks said he would read and consider them carefully before rendering a decision.

22D SEPARATE COMPANY.

Differences Settled by the Election of John K. Walbridge as Captain.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, June 3 .- John Knickerbacker Walbridge was elected last night Cap-tain of the Twenty-second Separate Company. New York National Guard, of this town, and Hiram L. Todd was elected Second Lieutenant. The elections were practically unantmous, and thus brought to an end serious disaffections which have existed in this company and which have been much discussed by Namarkable total when it is considered that it tional Guardsmen throughout the State ever since the war with Spain closed. The Saratoga Second and Park Avenue bridges, and that it | company, which has been one of the crack separate companies of the Guard for years, was Company L of the Second New York Volunteer Infantry, commanded by Col. Edwin E. Hardin, who was relieved from duty as a Captain in the Seventh United States Infantry to command the Second New York during the war. The regiment went out in response to the President's first call for volunteers, and was kept during most of the war in campat Tampa. Company L lost more men by death from illness contracted in camp than any other comness contracted in camp than any other com-pany in the regiment. When the regiment was mustered out and the Saratoga company came home the men began to find fault with some of the officers for the way in which they had con-ducted themselves during the time the regi-ment was in the service. A climax was reached when the Captain who commanded the com-pany during the war ordered a drill at the com-pany's armory, in lake avenue. There was a full attendance of the members, but when the order to tall in was given only a small number a full attendance of the members, but when the order to tall in was given only a small number obeyed the order. The others declared that unless the Captain and one or two other officers resigned they would leave the Guard. This practical mutiny of the whole company was reported to Major Gen. Roe, but it was finally adjusted by the unpopular officers resigning. Capt. Walbridge was a sergeant in the company during the war and is a leader in fashionable society here. His election was a recognition on the part of the members of the company of the care and attention he gave to his men in hospital during the war. He was educated at one of the best military schools in the State and entered the Guard as a private. He is only about 21 years old, and is said to be the youngest Captain in the Guard.

PARK FOR PUSHCART MARKET.

STO STOR

Dazzling Scheme to Restore Hester and Essex Streets to the People. Policeman John J. O'Brien of the Madison street station, who is known among the members of the department as "Constitution O'Brien on account of his supposed deep knowledge of the police rules and regulations, solicited the services of Magistrate Plammer yes doing away with the pushcart nuisance in Hester, Division and Essex streets. O'Brien came to the conclusion that the pushcart nulsames should be abated and the streets re stored to the people. How to do it was the question that puzzled him, but, being a man of original ideas, he soon evolved a plan.

After inspecting Rutgers Square Park, which cost the city a vast aum of money, he came to the conclusion that the park could be used for more practical purposes than those intended by its projectors.

"What is the matter," asked O'Brien of some of the Division street, storekeepers. "with turn-of the Division street, storekeepers. "with turn-by its projectors.

"What is the matter," asked O'Brien of some of the Division street storekeepers, "with turning the park into a public market? Give each pushcart man a location in it, and as there is room for all these streets would soon be cleared of pushcarts."

O'Brien determined to interest the City Magistrates in his project and in order to get the matter before them he arrested Jacob Fishbein yesterday morning for allowing his pushcart to stand within ten feet of another. When Fishbein was arraigned before Magistrate Flammer, O'Brien told about his public pushcart market scheme. "I have a gentleman here who will speak further about the project," said O'Brien, introducing a well-dressed man, who wore lots of jeweiry.
"Your Honor," said the man, "I stand ready to lease the park from the city and will pay $5,000 a mouth for it. I will then let out locations to pushcart peddlers and others and in this way get my money back. I have spoken to several Aldermen about it and would like to get your assistance."

get your assistance."
Magistrate Flammer promised to look into the matter. DIRECT ROUTE TO BRIGHTON BRACH.

Cars Began Running on the Flatbush Avenue Line Yesterday. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company vesterday opened its new through route from Manhattan to Brighton Beach by way of the Platbush avenue line and cars ran every ten minutes during the day. The fare by this route is 10 cents. The cars, on leaving Flatbush avenue at the Willink entrance of the bush avenue at the Willink entrance of the park, go on the old Brighton Beach road, which has been equipped with electricity. President Rossiter of the Rapid Transit Company says that the 10-cent fare over this route will be maintained so far as the general public is concerned, but that later on a plan will be devised to carry persons living along the line of the road for five cents. It was announced yesterday by Mr. Rossiter that negotiations are in progress for a traffic arreement between his company and the Kings County Elevated Railroad Company by which the jatter's cars may be operated on the kings County Elevated Railroad Company by which the latter's cars may be operated on the lirighton Beach line. There is a connection between the lines by an incline at Franklia avenue. If the agreement is made the elevated road will at once be equipped with electricity up to the place of connection.

The Long-Postponed Dedication to Take Place Next Friday at Bochester. ROCHESTER, June 3. - Gov. Roosevelt is to be in Rochester next Friday to attend the dedication of the monument of Frederick Douglass. He has taken a great deal of interest in the efforts made by the committee of Rochester citizens to raise the balance due on the statue, so that terday in the Essex Market Police Court in | it can be dedicated free from debt. The com mittee has announced that the statue would not be unveiled until the last cent was raised. not be unveiled until the last cent was raised. The announcement that the Governor would surely be here has stirred the committee to renewed activity, and in the last few weeks the money needed has been obtained. The statue stands in a small triangular space near the New York Central station. It has been there on its pedestal for nearly a year, and an announced dedication had to be postponed because the monument was not paid for. It has been closely shrouded in brown cloth.

Frederick Douglass was buried in Mount Hope Cemetery in this city, at his own request. There are many tributes to his memory here, one of which is a marble bust presented to the University of Rochester. A fact which shows the wide influence he exerted is a contribution of $1,000 by the republic of Hayti to the monument fund.
